"My responsibilities include designing visualizations of new and upgraded equipment"

Traditionally, IT-specialists would use MS Visio for such purposes. Radoslaw began using this software package, but was faced with a few problems that made his work more difficult.

Visio seemed to be too cumbersome and expensive a package for the challenges that stood before Radoslaw, and he needed a tool with which he could easily and quickly sketch his ideas for the development and monitoring of computer network security, equipment and software upgrades.
